

Solution Brief

Quadrant Software solution reduces time-to-money for transportation and distribution companies

Short time to cash solutions substantially reduce the time from delivery to payment

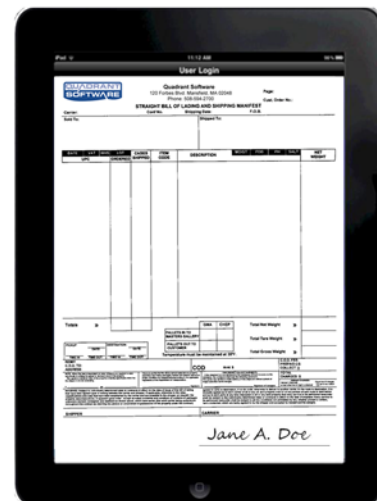

Quadrant Software provides a complete solution for transportation and distribution industries focused on reducing the time from product delivery to invoicing.

Quadrant Software, the leading provider of Electronic Document Distribution solutions with over 3,500 customers, along with a key technology partner, has seamlessly integrated its document creation and routing technology to full featured document imaging system. Forms and documents created and delivered with Quadrant Software technology can now be routed for digital signatures on the iPhone, iPad or iPod Touch.

By streamlining this process, companies of all sizes will realize huge operational savings associated with the management of documents including storage costs and overhead costs associated with the manual handling, entering, and assimilation of those paper assets. Customers can now send out invoices for products and services the instant those products are delivered and signed for.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Improved productivity, efficiency and responsiveness
- Lowered DSOs and better cash management
- Lower costs of ownership through increased flexibility
- Ability to react quickly to dynamic business needs

Remote signature capture provides the ability to confirm delivery at the instant it takes place. From there, invoices can be automatically generated with Quadrant Software's Formtastic™ and sent via email or fax via Quadrant Software distribution gateways to customers or distribution warehouses. Simultaneously, all business forms are archived and available for quick reference.

Quadrant Software delivers a fully integrated software platform

Quadrant Software provides a full range of software solutions appropriately packaged for all sizes of transportation businesses. From local heating oil / supply houses to intercontinental moving and distribution conglomerates, Quadrant Software has a solution that will fit the business needs.

Both small and large distribution companies create customer presentable, top quality forms direct from their IBM i® applications, securely route them throughout their organization or to customers, archive those documents electronically, and have them available for both remote and tethered signature capture.

Quadrant Software and Avnet Team to provide optimized IBM i platforms

As an Avnet ISR, customers can now strategically analyze their infrastructure to include Quadrant Software solutions with an ideally configured, scalable IBM i platform. Avnet experts are available to help as you determine your ideal configuration.

“Quadrant Software’s immediate invoicing solution for transportation companies will revolutionize the way they go about their business, realizing huge savings in cost and manpower while drastically reducing their time to cash. The ability to quickly create, execute, route, and subsequently find documents has a huge impact on a business’ bottom line.”

– Bill Dowell, Vice President, Channels & Strategic Relationships, Quadrant Software

The Quadrant Software solution stack is scalable cross platforms ranging from the BladeCenter PS 701 Express through the largest of IBM i systems.

A Complete Solution for Transportation/Distribution

Quadrant Software solutions significantly impact productivity and efficiency of transportation companies. These solutions combine the strength and support of IBM Power Systems and IBM i to provide a superior platform capable of the most strenuous business operations.

The Bottom Line

Together, these solutions help businesses achieve:

- Improved productivity, efficiency and responsiveness
- Lowered DSOs and better cash management
- Lower costs of ownership through increased flexibility
- Ability to react quickly to dynamic business needs
